WHAT'S YOUR PRICE?

For what will it profit a man if he gains the whole world and forfeits his soul? Or what shall a man give in return for his soul? (Matt 16:26)

Jesus' apostles didn't want to hear him talk about his coming martyrdom. Peter insisted, "This shall never happen to you!" (v. 22) Not only did the Master try to prepare them for his death, he insisted that discipleship unavoidably involved a cross for them as well. When confronted with that reality during Jesus' trial at the home of Caiaphas, Peter failed the test (26:69-75). Though certainly not a coward, Peter discovered that following Jesus requires diligence and self-discipline in the face of temptation.

Modern believers find it no easier to consistently deny self than did those early Christians. Our devotion to Jesus is constantly challenged by the temptation to indulge our own selfishness. As Satan cynically questioned the faithfulness of Job, so he disputes ours: "All that a man has he will give for his life." (Job 2:4) Many echo this sentiment with "Every man has his price."

Jesus' question, although unlike the snarling insult of the devil, is no less serious. The word translated "soul" by the ESV in Matthew 16:26 is rendered "life" by the RSV and ASV. Jack Lewis says that it "possibly means 'person' or 'self,' and hence may mean 'himself.'" The NEB renders it "What will a man gain by winning the whole world, at the cost of his true self! Or what can he give that will buy that self back?" Jesus had refused the kingdoms of the world in the temptation (Matthew 4:8-10); now he called upon the disciples to weigh the value of the whole world against the value of self.

What am I worth? Not my body, but me, my "true self." Is there anything for which I would willingly forfeit my "self?" Is any earthly gain worth my self-prostitution? If I lose my soul, is there anything I have (or desire) that could buy it back? Wealth? Power? Education? Possessions? Influence? Heritage? Recreation? Ease? The concern is not the value of these, but whether I will seek them at the cost of my soul.

With Paul (from a different context), we can joyfully affirm that...

"...whatever gain I had, I counted as loss for the sake of Christ. ⁸ Indeed, I count everything as loss because of the surpassing worth of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things and count them as rubbish, in order that I may gain Christ ⁹ and be found in him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the law, but that which comes through faith in Christ, the righteousness from God that depends on faith...." (Philippians 3:7-9)

Back in November, our family lost a frequent visitor, as did all of the Savannah area. His life was taken by a driver under the influence of alcohol. The holiday this weekend is celebrated by many in our area. Unfortunately, alcohol plays a huge part in this celebration. Please be careful on the roads. The law enforcement community can only do so much. Please take care of you.
