Project 52

Hi again! Welcome to week 15 of the MyMemories Project 52 series! Can you believe the year is flying by so fast?? WOW! Well, this week's "word of the week" is something I know I struggle with from time to time and maybe you do too. When I am learning something new - such as techniques that will improve my photography, I get frustrated! I get overwhelmed, it's too hard, I'm just not getting the results I want and I don't think I am getting any better! Well, that's where this week's word comes in! Really try to stay POSITIVE and don't let be discouraged with all of the things that are left to learn! Try to just pick ONE thing at a time and practice, practice, practice, until that becomes a natural step in your process. Try just ONE manual camera setting at a time - it does get easier!

If you find yourself getting aggravated that you are not happy with your progress, the best way to help that is to look at the pictures YOU used to take! Never compare yourself to anyone but the photographer YOU used to be!! If you look back at old pictures you too, I bet you will see a difference, you will notice that your photos are more focused, or more colorful, or more cropped - something will stick out that will SHOW that you ARE learning and getting better!! Try only to focus on YOU and your efforts. Chances are there will always be someone better than you - but you know what, they are not YOU, they don't have the story to tell that you do! Continue to learn, continue to PRACTICE and continue to GROW! Even if you never ever become a pro (and most of us won't!) YOU CAN be happy with the pictures YOU take of those YOU love!
