If you've been married any length of time, you get it. The dailiness of life claws at your love for each other, tugging you one inch at a time to opposite corners of the room.

Well we want to help you get back to what you once had- and rediscover all the reasons you fell in love in the first place.

FamilyLife's Weekend to Remember marriage getaway is your chance to slow down, reconnect, and be more than just roommates (...or adversaries). To get back to what matters most.

Even better? Starting today, registrations are 50% off!

Yes, life will still pull at you when you return. But we'll help you re-enter your home as a unified team, ready to face whatever challenges that come your way.

The research is clear: premarital education works. In general, the average couple sees a 30 percent increase in relationship quality and it lowers the annual odds of divorce by 31 percent. That's the good news.

The bad news for blended family couples is while 44 percent of all couples report receiving some form of premarital education (usually by a religious organization), fewer than 25 percent of pre-stepfamily couples received relationship education to discuss their upcoming blended family marriage.

WISDOM AND INSPIRATION FOR BLENDED FAMILIES

Do you know someone struggling in a stepfamily? We have lots of resources!
Let us know if someone needs help.

What have we been doing?

I have been having lunch with Dave as often as I can! He is moving to Las Vegas in September and will be a dealer for the World Series of Poker. He is very excited!

No more working from home. We have moved into office space and I have sunlit windows. The first thing I did was to get some houseplants! It's about a 40-minute commute so that adds to a longer workday, but it will be our new normal. I was so spoiled!!

One of my tasks with the new office space was to get quotes for signage. Turns out, everything she was asking for, I could make! So, I made two acrylic signs and two vinyl wall decals. Larry helped install them, and we are both pretty proud of how they turned out.

We are so grateful for you, our ministry partners. Please keep in touch!

One home at a time, Larry and Lynn

Prayer Requests...

- Pray for stepfamilies that are struggling. Pray that God will connect them with helpful resources.
- Pray for our team here in Little Rock that we will adjust to our new normal and be used by God to help families change their corner of the world!
- A holiday weekend means a house project for Larry and I! We are going to clean out "the cave" above our garage. It's the last place stuffed with stuff! Pray that we will be in agreement, give each other lots of grace, and make good progress.
